

David Havelka Ph.D., Mgr. et Mgr.

Dr. Havelka graduated from Masaryk University with two degrees in psychology and special education and completed a study stay in the UK. He worked for several years as a clinical psychologist at the Psychiatric Hospital Šternberk and as an assistant professor at Masaryk University. During the Ph.D. studies his research was focused on families, where one of the members has mental illness or disability. Since 2022 he has been working as a chief psychologist at the Opařany Children's Psychiatric Hospital. His current passion, practice and research focus is on the implementation of practical and evidence based interventions for children and adolescents who are impulsive, emotionally dysregulated, having troubles with cognitive and executive functions. Dr. Havelka lectures at many professional conferences and regularly publishes in Czech and international journals.